

King George V - 'Photogravure' Issue.

In 1934 Harrisons & Sons regained the contract to print, using photogravure, low value and commemorative postage stamps. To ease accuracy in perforating, the original 'larger' printed stamps were reduced, then reduced again to a so-called 'small' size. No attempt has been made when recording the number of Perfin dies to differentiate between the three stamp formats.

The following table lists the standard varieties, along with their dates of introduction.
